OREGON LOSES PARISH SCHOOL CASE

U. S. SUPREME COURT HOLDS LAW INVALID

Act to Compel Children to Attend Public Schools Un-constitutional CREATED KEEN INTEREST
Bench Also Rules Cement and Maple Floor Corporations as Trusts

Washington, D. C.—Oregon lost in the supreme court Monday its fight to compel children to attend public schools.
The court held that the states, in enforcing compulsory education laws, cannot require the attendance of children in public schools, to the exclusion of private or parochial schools.
The Oregon compulsory education law requiring children between the ages of 8 and 16 to attend public schools, therefore, was declared invalid.
In educational and religious circles keener and wider interest was shown in the attack upon the constitutionality of the Oregon public school law than in any other controversy which reached the supreme court in recent years.
Like most states, Oregon has a compulsory education law which requires children to attend school, and prescribes the course of study. The right to enforce such regulations has not been seriously questioned in the courts. But in 1922 the voters of Oregon, 115,505 to 102,655, went a step further, and enacted a law under which children between the ages of 8 and 16, with some exceptions, would after September, 1926, be required to attend "public" schools.
Opponents of this step charged that the law was due to the activity of the Ku Klux Klan. Suits were promptly brought in the federal district court by the Society of the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary, conducting parochial schools, and by the Hill Military Academy, a private school. Enforcement of the law was restrained, and the state appealed to the supreme court.

JOINED IN OPPOSITION
Joined in opposition to the new law eventually were a number of religious organizations, Jewish as well as Christian, and many educational institutions, colleges and universities, as well as private and parochial schools. The board contention was that should states be permitted to monopolize the education of children up to the grammar grades, the next step would be the taking over of education in the higher grades.
The new Oregon law proposed that all children between 8 and 16 physically able and living within a reasonable distance should attend public schools, unless educated at home by private tutors under state supervision. In the lower federal court the question of property rights in controlling in the decision of the constitutional questions presented. The private and parochial schools contended with success that the states law under which they had been incorporated continued a contract, which must be respected and could not be broken; that under the contract they had acquired property rights through the exercise of property rights in controlling in the decision of the constitutional questions presented. The private and parochial schools contended with success that the states law under which they had been incorporated continued a contract, which must be respected and could not be broken; that under the contract they had acquired property rights through the exercise of property rights in controlling in the decision of the constitutional questions presented.

UPLIFT TRUST LAW
Washington, D. C.—The "trade association" method of cooperation within great industries was upheld by the supreme court today over the protest of the federal government.
Laying down principles of far-reaching importance to the business world, the court decided that neither the Cement Manufacturers Protective association nor the Maple Flooring Manufacturers association was invalid under the anti-trust laws.
The operation of these two associations had been declared by government counsel to be broadly similar and typical of a movement among great business concerns to the Sherman act under the guise of merely exchanging trade information. With that contention the supreme court disagreed, holding that both associations were operating lawfully.

PLOTTED TO KIDNAP MARY PICKFORD

Coolidge Address Is Reply To Plea Of States' Rights

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1925 by the Post Pub. Co.
Washington, D. C.—President Coolidge feels that state government in the United States has fallen down and that the proper complaint of federal encroachment on state powers is due to the neglect of the several states to "discharge their full duties."
This thought expressed in the Memorial day speech is the first counter offensive delivered by the president against the outcry of centralized power as developed with respect to the eighteenth amendment on prohibition and other proposed amendments to the federal constitution relating to child labor and kindred questions usually regarded as a function of the state.
Mr. Coolidge gave much thought to the preparation of his speech, seeking an occasion to make clear his views about the relationship of the federal government to the states.
He did not refer specifically to the number of instances in recent years in which governors and mayors had been impeached or removed for irregularities in office but to the general attitude of the states in leaning on the federal government in important problems.
The president did not hesitate to recall that originally prohibition was within the jurisdiction of the states and that "rigid laws were adopted to stop the traffic in intoxicants but that other states did not co-operate in advancing this policy and ultimately by national action it was extended to all the union."
Mr. Coolidge deplored also the tendency to ask the federal government to appropriate half for roadways and other projects if the states supply the other half. He called it "national doles."
It is a policy he has deprecated from the very beginning of his administration. The president, however, did not confine himself to these relationships alone but to problems not now within the federal jurisdiction but upon which federal aid is sought. He argued, for instance, that this could hardly be "a land of equal opportunity" so long as "some can go to a distant state for divorces which others are de-

WOULD REOPEN DRAINAGE CASE

Chicago, Dissatisfied With Court Decision, Asks New Hearing

By Associated Press
Washington.—The sanitary district of Chicago Monday asked the supreme court for a rehearing in the case upholding the injunction restraining the amount of water the district could withdraw from Lake Michigan.
The sanitary district declared that the Canadian boundary waters treaty had been erroneously constructed by the court. It also was argued that the permits granted for the opening of the drainage canal and the enlargement of the Chicago river were irrevocable; that the court had erroneously construed the effect of the permits which had been granted and that the attorney general had sought relief exclusively under the rivers and harbors act of March 3, 1899 while the court had not confined its opinion to a construction of that law but had applied other principles in sustaining the position taken by the government.
The Canadian boundary waters treaty, the clause quoted by the court, the district insisted, had no application to Lake Michigan. The waters of that lake, it was held, are not boundary waters under the preliminary articles of the treaty.

POLICE HOLD 3 WHO SOUGHT HUGE RANSOM

Previous Conspiracy Affected Jackie Coogan, Pola Negri and Doheny

By Associated Press
Los Angeles, Calif.—With three purported confessions in their hands and a trio of alleged plotters under lock and key, police investigators working on the Mary Pickford kidnapping case met Monday with representatives of the district attorney's office to discuss presentation of the so-called $200,000 plot to the county grand jury.
In the mean time an attorney retained by the wire of A. J. Woods, one of the alleged conspirators, announced he would seek his immediate release on a writ of habeas corpus. Woods who is a truck driver, and his two associates C. A. Holcomb, also a truck driver, and C. Z. Stevens, automobile salesman, all have made signed confessions of their part in the kidnapping plot, according to police, and are being held on suspicion to commit a felony.
In the purported confessions the prisoners admit that under the stimulus of strong drink they talked of various "ways of getting easy money." A project to kidnap the grandchildren of E. I. Doheny, oil magnate, was under consideration for a while, as were plans to carry off and hold for ransom Jackie Coogan, Pola Negri and the grandson of an unnamed retired businessman. Finally the confessions reveal, Mary Pickford was "picked as the most likely prospect for a really profitable kidnapping."
Conferences were held at which it was agreed Miss Pickford should be seized while enroute from her Hollywood studio to her home; that the kidnapping should be given an up-to-the-minute camouflage by bundling the actress into the car decked with shrine convention banners and busting so as to give the affair an air of innocent merrymaking and that the victim should be held in a secluded house until her husband Douglas Fairbanks paid the conspirators $200,000. It was while the matter of selecting a suitable house was still under discussion that the police housed the trio in the city jail.

Band Concert Tonight To Open Scout Campaign

Gilbert Butler of Chicago, is to be the speaker at the dinner at 6:15 Tuesday evening of about 75 workers who will conduct the annual campaign for support of boy scout work in Appleton. The campaign opens with a scout demonstration in connection with the public band concert Monday evening at Pierce park.
Mr. Butler is an engineer of Illinois Bell Telephone Co., and one of that state's most active leaders in boy scout work. He will tell what is being done in other communities to build up this movement. Mr. Butler suggested in his letter to P. O. Koerber, executive of valley council, that mothers be invited to hear his address but word was received too late to make the necessary arrangements.
All of the teams which will conduct the campaign are to be present at the dinner with their captains. John R. Rigdi, chairman of Appleton district committee, will preside. Each team member will be told to report daily to his captain. All captains will make reports next Saturday morning so the results of the campaign will be known. The Appleton goal is $2,500.

JOINS HIS RUNNING MATE

Thomas R. Marshall, who as vice president of the United States shared the glamor of President Wilson's wartime administration, followed his chief Monday when he succumbed to an attack of heart disease.

Police Probe Mystery Fire That Kills Wealthy Broker

Chicago.—Conflicting stories confronted police Monday in their efforts to account for a mystery fire which caused the death of Leo Reynolds, a wealthy broker and clubman in his apartment in a fashionable North Side neighborhood Sunday morning.
Firemen found Parson's body, partly clothed, in the burned drawing room of his home. In the apartment at the time were Mrs. Parsons and James King, a policeman, who said he had accompanied the broker home several times previously.
Mrs. Parsons, an amateur singer and known to her friends as a motorist and horse woman, suffered slight burns on her face and hands while King was severely burned, and also injured when he fell to the ground from a second story window.
Mrs. Parsons said that she did not know of her husband's death when she greeted firemen who entered the apartment informing the police that she and Mr. Parsons returned home at 10:30 Saturday night. She later fixed the time at 1:30 Sunday morning, saying she had retired immediately. Neighbors, however, reported they had heard the two talking loudly in front of the building about 4:30 in the morning.
Awakened by smoke about 10 a. m., Mrs. Parsons summoned a Japanese servant, and sounded the alarm.
King, who was questioned at a hospital said that he had just ended his patrol duty on upper Sheridan road when an automobile careened toward him, was halted at his side and the single occupant, Parsons, introduced himself and invited the policeman to help him drive home. King accompanied the broker to the latter's apartment where they were served

WISCONSIN RANKS HIGH IN EXPORTS

State, Fourteenth on List, Shipped $89,000,000 in Products Last Year

Washington.—Texas ranged first in the union during 1924 as a source of export contributions to the foreign trade of the United States.
The commerce department gave out Monday a compilation of figures showing the first of their kind ever collected—which showed that Texas exports for the year had a valuation of $737,215,927, just above the $731,553,502 of exports credited to New York, and comparing with the $223,293,009 of exports which originated in Pennsylvania, the state which ranked third.
The collection of the exports by states of origin was begun first by the state commerce department in 1924 and is subject, it was said officially, to some allowance for error, due to the experimental nature of the attempt, and to the fact that bills of lading attached to export shipments are not always marked to show the exact point of production. Notwithstanding, the records attained are considered fairly reliable, and their collection will be continued.
The 1924 table for the higher ranking states follows:
Texas $737,215,927, New York $731,553,502, Pennsylvania $223,293,153, Illinois $223,214,270, California $234,534,210, New Jersey $228,521,644, Louisiana $222,847,224, Michigan $177,876,554, Virginia $150,198,225, Ohio $143,559,352, Massachusetts $114,415,450, Minnesota $89,550,490, Washington $88,950,096, Wisconsin $8,250,535.

GOES TO LEAVENWORTH FOR BREAKING DRY LAW

By Associated Press
St. Louis, Mo.—Heber Nations, former state labor commissioner, was sentenced by federal judge Paris, Monday to serve 18 months in Leavenworth prison and pay a fine of $2,335 for conspiracy to violate the Volstead act in "protecting" the manufacture and sale of beer by the Griesedick brewery here. Nations was convicted by a jury last Friday.

WILSON'S WAR TIME MATE VICTIM OF HEART DISEASE

AUTOIST WHO DRANK INJURES SON IN TIPOVER

Operation of an automobile Sunday night after he had partaken of liquor proved somewhat of a boomerang to James Kedell, route 6, Appleton, for he not only was locked up in Hortonville jail and fined $15, but his son about ten years old is confined at home with injuries.
Kedell was delivering ice cream for an Appleton concern to outlying towns and left Hortonville about 10 o'clock in the evening for Stephansville on moved from the highway. He appeared Lippold woods when he steered too near the edge of the road and his truck tipped over into the ditch.
It appeared that Kedell and his son both were hurt when they were picked up and conveyed to Hortonville for treatment. The physician found that the father had been drinking, however, and he therefore was arrested by Fred Clark, Hortonville marshal, and placed in jail. The boy was conveyed to his home in Appleton in Ku-nitz ambulance. He was cut and bruised about the head but his condition appeared quite favorable Monday.
Kedell was released from jail at midnight Sunday so he could have his wrecked truck and cargo ice cream removed from the highway. An EH appeared before Justice John Smith, Hortonville Monday morning and paid a fine of $15. The truck was only slightly damaged by tipping over.

End Comes After Sudden Illness During Week's Visit in Washington

WAS "PLAIN" AMERICAN

He passed away at the New Willard hotel where he had been ill for several days with a cold and a heart affection.

HARTFORD ASKS DENIAL OF NEW TRIAL FOR BANK

City Maintains Its Case, Is No Parallel of the Richmond, Va., Case

By Associated Press
Madison.—Asking the Wisconsin supreme court to deny the motion for rehearing of the Hartford bank case counsel for the duty of Hartford and other interested parties including Oshkosh and the attorney general, in their brief filed with the court, welcomed an opportunity to defend the high court's decision in the United States supreme court.
Attorneys for the First National bank of Hartford, in their brief filed recently, objected to the majority decision of the state tribunal that the Wisconsin law taxing national bank stock on a personal property basis was valid under the federal regulations and upheld the collection of taxes from the Hartford bank under protest.
Three of the seven justices filed a dissenting opinion, in which Chief Justice Vinje declared bank stock was taxed at three times the value of other moneyed capital. A bill is pending in the legislature to tax bank stock on an income basis, similar to other capital which the banks contend compete with them.
The reply to arguments in support of the rehearing motion denies that the Hartford case parallels the Richmond bank case, which involved a similar question. It is argued that "Wisconsin should stand by the system which is fundamentally just and equitable."
Calling attention to the statement by counsel for the bank that "the result of presentation of this case to the United States supreme court is a foregone conclusion," the reply characterizes it as "an effort to raise in the minds of this court a fear that the decision in this case may be reversed by the United States supreme court."

Former Vice President Marshall was known to many Appleton residents, for he appeared in the Community Artists and Lecture series "In Lawrence Memorial Hospital, 1921." At the time of his lecture here he was entertained at a dinner at which a number of Appleton citizens were present.

regained strength gradually, however, and soon was in such a condition that it was possible for Mrs. Marshall to leave the bedside to attend to various personal errands around the capital.
The former vice president had planned a 10-day stay in the capital. It was one of the periodical visits which he had made since his retirement from the vice presidency in 1921. On these occasions he always had called at the White House to pay his respects to the president.
The illness which followed quickly on his arrival here last Monday prevented him from making any calls or receiving any callers. Despite his 71 years, he reacted favorably to the treatment given him by physicians whose examinations recorded a slow but gradual improvement almost until the end.
The tentative plan to take his body to Marion for burial followed out a desire said to have been expressed by the former vice president that his final resting place be near that of his foster son, Clarence Morrison, whose death was one of the great sorrows of Mr. Marshall's life.

Washington.—President Coolidge, who succeeded Mr. Marshall as vice president, expressed his sorrow in a letter to Mrs. Marshall.
Tentative plans were made for a funeral in Indianapolis under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. Short services probably will be held also in Washington with officials in attendance. The body will be taken west on a train leaving Washington late Tuesday or Wednesday.

MAN OF HUMOR
A sparkling sense of humor, a knack for plain speaking and a philosophy of life rooted in old fashioned virtues made Thomas Riley Marshall on the most interesting figures of his time in American public life.
His bubbling wit washed out every suggestion of false dignity, and his direct manner of expression reached the understanding of millions. He prided himself somewhat that he was not a diplomat, and that he never censored the tenets of that simple faith in God and man to which he was born. Sometimes his blunt expressions of opinion and his refusal to put on the cloak of an exalted reserve in high office worried his friends and dismayed his political advisers; but he always insisted that a man must first of all keep peace with his own convictions.
A convincing test of his fidelity to that precept came upon him in the days when Woodrow Wilson lay stricken at the White House, shut off from the nation by a veil of impenetrable mystery. Out of the many whisperings of others in high places in the government there emerged a project to declare the war president incapable of performing the duties of his office, and to elevate the second in command to the presidency. The suggestion even occupied the serious thought of some members of the Wilson cabinet. But when it was broached to Vice President Marshall,

TORMENTORS OF COLLEGE APPEAR IN 3-ACT COMEDY

Entire Production of "Three Sheets to the Wind" Is by College People

A wholly original production is offered by the Tormentors at the Windy City Theatre tonight and tomorrow evening. There are original songs, music, dances, and words, student composers, student actors, student directors, student management. This combination is an innovation on the campus.

Dorothy Adsit stars in the 3-act musical comedy song and three-act play in the part of a beautiful but rather dumb stenographer to the manager of a New York theatrical company. Harold Jens plays the managerial role.

The story is woven around the summons of the King of the Island of Doo Doo to the manager, ordering him to appear and entertain. The manager has his troubles in securing acts. The acts show up at the last minute, but histrionics, dances, and the presence among them of his lady love. There are love affairs, complications, matters which are not settled until the island is reached and the King entertained.

The first act is laid in the bare practice stage of the New York company. The second act is on the ship bound for the island, and the third act on the island after the arrival of the company.

Harold Jens in the role of the troubled manager, played by Muriel Hammond. Dorothy Adsit and Earle Sherman furnish comedy relief in their funny interpretations of the stenographer and the "rather English" stagehand. Isabel Wilcox and Ellsworth Stiles have several feature musical numbers as Sally, the daughter of the captain of the ship, and Sailor Jack, a member of the crew.

Jack Wilcox, Appleton plays a clever part in the second act of the hard captain, and an equally hard crew furnish excitement. Three novelty acts enter in the beginning in answer to the manager's advertisement. The three Zuseman brothers of Appleton tumble in "big top" style. Harry, Scidmore and James. The glee club men, sing in the guise of the "Two Rounders" and two "Twenty-minute Eggs" perform on two pianos.

The cast: stenographer, beautiful but dumb—Dorothy Adsit, Appleton; stagehand in love with the stenographer—Earle Sherman, Duluth; manager, with a real problem—Harold Jens, Appleton; Ermintrude, who adds to the manager's problems—Muriel Hammond, Appleton; Sally, the captain's daughter—Isabel Wilcox, Appleton; Sailor Jack who loves Sally—Ellsworth Stiles, Marinette; the captain, whose favorite expression is "I may be little but I'm hard"—Jack Wilcox, Appleton; King of the Doo Doo Island—John Fished, Milwaukee; Minister to the King—Anil Rich, Appleton; Attendants to the King—Harry Scidmore and James Archie.

Unsettled tonight and Tuesday. Probably showers and thunderstorms. Cooler in east and south portions. Strong shifting winds this afternoon and tonight.

GENERAL WEATHER
High pressure and fair weather prevail in the east. A strong low pressure area is moving slowly across the plain states with showers and thunderstorms in many sections from the Lake region westward. This will continue to cause unsettled and showery weather in this section Monday night and Tuesday with fairly high temperature Monday. Cool weather will follow westward to the lake and this reaction from the high temperature may reach this section late Monday night and on Tuesday. High temperatures have been general over the plain states over the weekend on the advanced side of this low. ## 3 SMALLPOX CASES IN QUARANTINE NOW

The Milwaukee smallpox epidemic does not seem to have spread as far as Appleton, according to local health officer, Dr. William Filton. There are only three mild cases of the disease in Appleton, and indications are that the sickness will not be prevalent. Probably the decisive action which the city board of health took early in the year regarding vaccination has a great deal to do with the prevention of an epidemic in Appleton. School children all over the city were vaccinated before the end of the Christmas vacation, and many grownups followed suit.

John Catlin and F. J. Harriman left for St. Paul and Minneapolis Monday to spend several days there on business.

250 INDIANS IN COUNCIL OPPOSE LARGE SAWMILL

Congressman Schneider Urges Indian Bureau to Erect One Saw Mill

Two hundred and fifty Menominee Indians assembled in full tribal council in the Keshena school auditorium voted unanimously against the construction of a 2-band sawmill, planned by the government at Neopit to replace a smaller mill recently burned there. The meeting was attended by Inspector Elaine of the interior department who acted as chairman. Congressman George J. Schneider who was one of the principal speakers; Judge E. V. Werner of Shawano; Attorney General Herman Ekern; State Senator Englund of Wittenberg; and Charles C. Nelson of Appleton, all of whom made short addresses.

Immediately after the vote was taken, Congressman Schneider informed the interior department at Washington of its outcome, urging his opinion that a 1-band saw mill, efficiently managed, would fill every requirement. The tribal council was in session all day.

The allotment of reservation lands to the Indians in 80-acre sections as planned in a bill before congress at its last session occupied most of the discussion in the morning. Congressman Schneider then explained proposed legislation to the tribe, telling them what action had been taken to relieve the situation.

At the afternoon session Judge E. V. Werner suggested legislation establishing what might be called a municipal court on the reservation, composed of Indians educated to qualify for such positions and cooperating with the state and federal courts. Attorney General Herman Ekern spoke of the responsibility of citizenship now enjoyed by the Indians, and told them of the interest the state is taking in their affairs. He dwelt upon the value of their timberlands and water power, and the necessity of proper conservation measures. The state desires to cooperate with the Indians and with the federal government with a view to promoting tribal interests, he said.

Much of the afternoon was devoted to a discussion of the proposed sawmill. It was disclosed that bids have been received for the new structure, but that as yet no contracts have been let. The bids now are in the hands of Charles H. Burke, commissioner, bureau of Indian affairs, Washington, D. C. When the matter of erecting the sawmill was put to a vote, not one of the Indians favored the large mill. Thirty of the 250 Indians present were women.

Superintendent Kennedy of the forestry department, bureau of Indian affairs, defended the position of the department in proposing the large mill.

The Keshena agency provided stenographers for the occasion, and interpreters were elected by the tribe to keep them informed of what was going on.

SUGGEST NAMES FOR BADGER "MAIN STREET"

Since the beginning of a movement by Oshkosh Lions club to select a name for state trunk highway 15 often referred to as "Main Street of Wisconsin" interest on the subject has been aroused all over the state. The club petitioned the state highway commission to choose a suitable name. Numerous suggestions have been given by people throughout the state. Mrs. Ida Walker, a New London woman, has suggested the name, "Dewey highway" in honor of Nelson Dewey, first governor of the state of Wisconsin. Another follows with the suggestion of "Doty highway" in honor of James D. Doty, first territorial governor of Wisconsin who lived in Neenah.

The Perfect Picnic

June, July, August and September are the picnic months—the season of short trips out of the hot city to some cool inviting spot in the country.

And the automobile has revolutionized picnics. Before the horseless carriage appeared on the streets, a fifteen mile trip was a long one when traveling in a one horse power carriage. But now a fifty or hundred mile trip is nothing to worry over with the smooth running automobile to take you there.

De Baufur Service assures you that your car is in the best shape always—for a five mile picnic trip—or a thousand mile vacation tour.

GROGAN AGAIN HEADS BADGER K. C. COUNCILS

Prim Elected Delegate to National Convention in Duluth Next August

F. W. Grogan was reelected state deputy of the Knights of Columbus and George T. Prim was elected delegate to the supreme convention at the state convention in Stevens Point Thursday. Other delegates to the supreme convention which will be held at Duluth, Minn., in August are A. H. Schubert, LaCrosse, past deputy commander; L. F. Nelson, Kaukauna; William J. Zenz, Milwaukee; T. F. Keegan, LaCrosse; Prof. R. S. McCaffery, Madison, and H. W. Born, Menominee. By virtue of his office as state deputy Mr. Grogan also will be a delegate to the supreme convention.

Mr. Grogan and Judge M. B. Rosenberry were the chief speakers of the convention. Distinguished visitors at the conclave were Bishop A. J. McGavick, LaCrosse, and the Rev. Albert C. Fox, S. J., president of Marquette university, together with several other prominent members of the Catholic clergy.

Brother Barnabas, boy leader at the University of Notre Dame, spoke of boy welfare, and the Knights made an appropriation of $2,000 for a scholarship at Notre Dame, open to any man in Wisconsin. This will be a post graduate scholarship in biology, the subject on which Brother Barnabas is a recognized expert.

Other state officers elected at the Stevens Point convention were as follows: E. J. Carrigan, Milwaukee, state secretary; J. J. Jameson, Shullsburg, treasurer; George Mooney, Plymouth, state advocate; Harry Engeldinger, Durand, state warden.

The order went on record as favoring a spiritual retreat for men each year, and the Rev. Father Fox spoke of the importance of this practice.

About 450 persons attended the banquet in the Whiting hotel and it was the general opinion that the convention was "no doubt the greatest over held by the Knights of Columbus in Wisconsin.

An appropriation was made for maintaining an assistant to the chaplain at St. Paul chapel in Madison, and a sum was set aside for the spiritual education of inmates in the Waukesha and Green Bay reformatories. The convention also declared itself in favor of the American legion movement fund drive, and adopted a resolution instructing the state deputy and delegates to place this matter before the supreme council at Duluth for action.

WISCONSIN AND ECONOMY
It is announced from Washington that the administration is now figuring out a plan by which federal expenditures for the various departments may be reduced
a flat 10 per cent in the next five years.
This would, if put into effect, cut the cost of national government by approximately $170,000,000. Preliminary to this step the budget direction has called upon the various departments to prepare tentative estimates based on a 2 per cent cut each year for five years. It practically amounts to an arbitrary demand that the administrative heads look about them and discover means of effecting additional economies. The president and his budget director evidently proceed upon the assumption that there is still a considerable sum of money expended unnecessarily and wastefully, despite the fact that spending has been brought down by approximately $2,000,000,000 in the last four years.

Undoubtedly the assumption is correct.
Notwithstanding the very genuine and extensive efforts of the president to get down to bed rock, the cost of federal government still remains, there is reason to believe excessive. Mr. Coolidge's drive for economy is, as we have previously pointed out, likely to be the outstanding accomplishment of his administration, and to distinguish it for all time. His conception that it is the great national need of the day and that upon it more than any other one factor rests the prospect of better times and more substantial prosperity,
is without doubt the sound and correct
view. It is not, however, economic ends alone that actuate the president, for he is convinced that the policy he so strongly supports will contribute also to the spiritual betterment of the country.

Every time there is a further move toward retrenchment at Washington, and the president's political theories are more concretely developed a painful picture is brought home to us of the contrast between that policy and what obtains in the state of Wisconsin. It has required the influence of a president of unusual personality and strength of character, assisted by a budget director of real genius, and hopeful legislation to bring about the reforms which have taken place in Washington. When we consider that at Madison there is no genuine effort made to stop wholesale and reckless spending, but rather an inclination to increase it and excuse it, we may have some conception of what conditions are in this state. If the federal government can reduce its operating cost by billions the state of Wisconsin can do so by millions, and that is what it should do. But we have a political machine at Madison that is bent on only one thing and that is maintenance of itself in power by whatever means may be necessary. Since it has nothing to its credit in a constructive way that may merit
public approval, it has to resort to devious political methods to preserve its existence, and that requires an organization of job holders and the free use of money in public expenditures. That is, the situation in this state and it is going to continue so until we have a popular uprising that demands of those in charge of affairs that they be handled in accordance with the example set by the administration of President Coolidge at Washington.

GOVERNMENT WINS ITS CASE
The government has won an apparently complete victory in its suit to annul the Elks Hills oil leases to E. L. Doheny and the Pan-American oil company. The decision of the lower court, where the case was tried supports the contention of the government's lawyers.
It holds that Doheny and his company
obtained oil reserves in California
by fraud and orders a restoration of title to the government. It finds that the "loan" of $100,000, to Albert Fall, former secretary of interior, was a "fraud on the United States of America," and the result of a conspiracy between Doheny and Fall to turn over possession of these valuable reserves to the former. It is further decided that the presidents transfer of authority to lease such lands from the navy department to the interior department was without authority, that Edwin Denby, former secretary of the navy, was entirely passive in this transaction, and that the whole affair was irregular and tainted.

This is common sense application of law to admitted facts. It is the polite way of saying that Doheny bribed Fall as secretary of interior to negotiate these leases, and that a political conspiracy of some sort was arranged for transferring control of them from Denby to the secretary of interior. The president, it appears, was made an unwitting tool in this bold scheme to rob the nation of a resource of the highest importance. In view of this decision, which we have little doubt will be affirmed on appeal, it seems to us
the government should not hesitate to prosecute both Fall and Doheny on the bribery charge. The case should not terminate until full justice is done and the whole miserable fraud cleaned up by punishing as the law contemplates, those directly guilty, along with their accessories.

THOUGHT AND KNOWLEDGE
Most of the knowledge and progress of the world have been due to a very few generations of its history. What was the matter with the rest? One generation is as intelligent as another. Why does one learn much, and the others nothing?
A papyrus has just been deciphered in Egypt which shows a knowledge of medicine such as the world did not possess again for three thousands years. Priestly orthodoxy stagnated the promulgation of that knowledge.

Aristotle, a few centuries later, laid
the foundations of both science and philosophy. His successors were interested in the philosophy and carried it on usefully for over two thousands years. They were not interested in the science, and it stopped where Aristotle had left it until almost yesterday.
For a thousand years after Roman freedom ceased, thought was not free, and the world learned nothing. Then, in one or two generations, it woke up, and the miracle of the Renaissance illuminated
the darkness. Our own grandfathers discovered that physical things were worth knowing, and the physical conditions of life were evolutionized more in two generations than they had been in twenty thousand years.

When thought is free and knowledge
is regarded as worth while, the world leaps forward. At other times, it stands still, or worse. The Tennessee Legislature would, if it could, return us to the stagnant ages.

"I'll hold 'em like this, and ya wind 'em up tight, and ya set 'em right down and let go. Bring 'em back if they're not running right. They're swell,
and they don't cost much dough.
"A quarter a piece—or perhaps ya want two.
Well, two for a half is my price. Made for a child, and they're easy to do. All buyers admit that they're nice.
"The newest creation I'm selling today. It's a

WHAT IS RESISTANCE?
There probably is a great deal of truth in the common notion that certain individuals are more susceptible to certain diseases than other individuals and that a given individual is more susceptible
at one time than he is at another, as, for instance,
when his general health has been impaired by bad hygiene. The attributes or characteristics on which this variable degree of susceptibility or immunity depends is usually called resistance, and while students of pathology and physicians give the question of resistance much consideration in dealing with all of the infectious or germ diseases, the laity hears little about resistance except in reference to those infectious or germ diseases which even the old foggy health officers and the old fashioned doctors
now admit are what they really mean when they speak of "common colds." No longer does any one with a rudimentary knowledge of science argue that exposure to cold or wet alone can produce any of the diseases which masquerade as "common colds," but the old fogies are desperately defending their last stronghold, iterating and reiterating that in some cases at any rate such exposure serves to "lower resistance" and so enables the infection to occur.

This theory of "lowered resistance" rests upon exceedingly poor ground, and find when we come to examine the foundations. It is a curious circumstance that the respiratory infection resistance to which we can scientifically determine and measure, by means of the Schick test, is never attributed to exposure to cold or wet—any more. The best scientific evidence supports the notion that cold or wet can "lower resistance," etc., when challenged,
is Pasteur's classical experiments with anthrax.
Briefly Pasteur conceived the idea that the temperature of fowls, which is several degrees higher than that of mammals, might be unfavorable to the development of anthrax bacilli. Fowls are immune to anthrax, which is exceedingly fatal to sheep. Accordingly Pasteur immersed a hen in a cold bath
in order to lower the hen's temperature, then inoculated the hen with a culture of anthrax germs. The hen died next day of anthrax—her blood and organs were full of the germs. This experiment was repeated many times, always with the same result.
Then Pasteur inoculated other hens with the germs
but without subjecting the hens to the cold bath;
none of these hens developed the disease. Critics asserted that the cold bath, not the germs, had killed
the hens, so Pasteur subjected some more hens to the cold bath without inoculating them, and these were none the less to remain perfectly well. Finally, Pasteur clinched his case beyond possibility of doubt by inoculating a hen and then keeping the hen in the cold bath until she developed symptoms of anthrax, whereupon she was taken out of the cold bath, dried, wrapped with cotton wool and kept in a box or coop which was kept heated to about 35
degrees Fahrenheit, and the hen soon made a complete recovery.

These are classical studies which led to the great bacteriologist's discovery of the means of preventing anthrax and indirectly to other discoveries of vast benefit to the human race. But Pasteur himself did not think or suggest that the anthrax experiments had any weight as evidence that exposure
lowers resistance to respiratory diseases in man.
There is no reasonable parallel in the reduction of the fowl's temperature by such unnatural means,
and the ordinary exposure to cold and wet which we all undergo more or less every day when it is cold or wet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Water in the Head.
Your mention of the physiological fact that the brain is 85 per cent water and bone is 40 per cent
water, reminds me of a peculiar custom of a savage tribe of Indians in Ecuador (described in National Geographic Magazine three years ago.) Head hunters behead their captives and by a long process man's fist, and it is then worn as a trophy, as our
of curing shrink the heads to about the size of a North American Indians used to wear the scalps water, why not—perhaps it is had taste in an undertaker to suggest lightening the burden. (L.
N. D.)
Answer.—The head hunters remove the skull before they begin the curing process. If the body of a man of average weight could be mummified all
the water driven off it would weigh only 50 pounds

TELL A CITY BY ITS SMELL
London—What is the characteristic smell of your town?
Some discussion has been aroused over here by the assertion that all big cities have a characteristic odor. Often it comes from one thing. Often it comes from a compound of several odors. For instance, as to European cities:
Paris smells of scent, gasoline and hot bread.
London smells mainly of lubricating oil and gasoline.
Berlin smells of gasoline, old leather and badly groomed horses.
Amsterdam smells of chocolate and tobacco, because it manufactures both in large quantities.
May we offer:

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
War debt settlement is the subject uppermost in statesmen's and financiers' minds throughout most of the world. "Unless," said Sir Esmé Howard a few days ago, "we can restore
a firm basis of confidence and credit throughout Europe, we are heading for a worse cataclysm than that produced by the actual war."
Almost as the British ambassador in Washington was making this statement, E. F. Youkum, the big railroad man, was laying before President Coolidge a debt settlement plan
of which many administration officials think extremely well. Billed small this plan contemplates a mutual debt
funding arrangement giving the European countries 100 years to pay America and one another at 2 1/2 per cent interest, commencing two years after their obligations' date.

MORAL LEADERSHIP
Basing his judgment on personal investigations of his own, the plan's author believes Europe would accept this extension of credit, at the rate
he suggests. He thinks it would satisfy Americans.
He is convinced it would establish "a community of interest" among the nations concerned which would make for world peace. He predicts that it would give America the moral leadership of the world. As for the length of time involved, "the war,"
he says, "set the world back 100 years.
Why not allow it 100 years to recover
in?"

REFUDIATION?
Otherwise, Youkum warns, America
may get nothing at all.
"The European taxpayer," he points out, "is patient and long-suffering. But he may become impatient to the point of exasperation under his tax burdens. Then look out. Refudiation is not new to history."

NO SHYLOCK
Youkum doesn't endorse the plaint
of some Europeans that America has been a hard creditor.
"If she had been," he asserts, "Europe long ago would have been thrown into bankruptcy, or the quarrels over her obligations would have led to the whole Christian world against us."
Also, "Had the United States refused to become identified with the Allied cause and unable to make these loans, the Central Powers would have won the war. This doesn't appear to enter into the thoughts of Europeans."

ARMS REGULATION
The Geneva international conference on arms regulation has reached a point where, it might as well quit, Numerous regulations have been adopted, indeed, but so qualified they won't regulate if any emergency arises where regulation is needed.
Without violating in spirit by any nation which chooses.

PROHIBITION
"The Anti-Saloon League and other dry forces," says Wayne B. Wheeler, the league's lawyer, "are now facing the most difficult part of the program
for a sober nation, namely, law enforcement." ... The Wisconsin house or representatives voted to ask congress to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. ... The Canadian province of Ontario having abandoned prohibition. Americans swarmed across the Detroit River to Windsor and drank half a million bottles of 4.4 per cent beer without an arrest.
There were arrests later, however,

AN IOWA TRILOGY
On May 10 Herbert Quick died at Columbia, Mo., and thus passed a writer who occupied a place in contemporary American fiction that was some that different from the position held by the average writer. It is true that every writer who is of any account is somewhat different from all other writers and it is perhaps not easy to indicate just how Herbert Quick differs from the average run. But it is likely that any fiction reader who is intimately acquainted with American letters of the past and present will taste in Herbert Quick's work a flavor
of a bygone day that is not present in the generation of writers now prominently before the American readers.
It is not merely that Herbert Quick,
in the trilogy that has made him famous, writes of a pioneer time that has gone forever and thus places his theme in the past. In the first place, he very probably chose the pioneer past for his stories because his heart was there, and in the second place he writes of that past not as an impersonal narrator but as one who belongs to that period in spirit.
In other words, in all essentials Herbert Quick was a man from a past generation who had lived on into a new time and who told his stories not in the manner of the generation in which he lived but in the manner of an earlier day.

GOLD AND ALLOY
The Iowa trilogy that made him famous, "Vandemark's Folly," "The Hawkeye," and "The Invisible Woman," is a series that is not to be despised. The enormous popularity for drinks with more kick. ... Recent surveys reveal the fact that much skill is being landed from abroad, despite the coast guard, as groceries, fish, perfumes and other unprohibited imports.

Q. I have been told that "Gringo"
was derived from the word "Greece." Can this be possible? J. C.
A. G. E. Weeks inclines to the view. He says "When English speaking people began coming to Mexico
they found the people with whom the same in contact unable to understand their language, just as they themselves were unable to understand the of the Mexicans. When addressed by a native quite naturally they use the familiar expression "That is a Greek to me." The word Greek in Spanish is, "Gringo" (pronounced Gree-ay-go), and what more natural than that the Mexicans, hearing the word used so much, came to speak of the foreigners as "Gree-ay-go-ay,"
which easily enough became corrupted into "Gringo-ay." This expression was heard wherever English speaking foreigners were encountered.

Pageant Is Example In Young Lives

Religious education and its value to young people in choosing their life pursuits was expressed in the pageant, "The Lamp," staged by about 100 young people of the First Congregational church Sunday evening under auspices of the Christian Endeavor society. The production was directed by Miss Mary B. Stevens, assistant pastor.

Miss Ramona Fox personified Religious Education, and Harry B. Leith and Miss Marjorie Davis, were the youth and maiden, respectively, who were seeking guidance. The Lamp of Bible times, resembling a pitcher, was brought to the stage by Miss Fox, and it burned all through the pageant. Its light was magic to the youth and maiden, for its rays revealed characters of many well known Bible stories. These figures, costumed beautifully in colors according to their day, passed across the stage before the eyes of the two who were being led into greater knowledge.

Old Testament story principals came first. Religious Education telling the youth and maiden about each group as it passed. Next came six episodes of the New Testament, starting with the birth of Christ and the first Christmas. The magi of today came next, depicting a Sunday school Santa Claus who spread cheer to children in hospitals. Feeding of the multitude, according to the Bible story, was acted by the next group and a fourth was a missionary scene, showing how Sunday school children can help those of other lands by their small gifts. Wise and foolish virgins, all clad in white, and carrying lamps of oil, were shown in the fifth episode as the wedding took place with several foolish ones left outside the gate. Christ's parable of the talents was the last one.

An interlude between the second and third parts brought to the platform a group of characters personifying great persons of today who were helping the Christian cause, such as David Livingstone, Florence Nightingale, Abraham Lincoln, Frances Willard and others.

The youth and the maiden, educated thus far to the point of decision, then had a group appear before them including Pleasure, Sport, Greed, Duty, Humility, Sacrifice and Struggle. The light of "the lamp" showed each, up in his true light, so that Pleasure, Sport, and Greed were quickly rejected. Duty, Humility, Sacrifice and Struggle were dressed in sombre capes and hoods and were chosen despite their drab looks. Each suddenly dropped her cloak, however, and Duty became Joy. Humility was Honor. Sacrifice was changed to Victory, and Struggle to Peace.

Favorite hymns appropriate to each scene was sung by a hidden choir.

SEVEN AGREE TO ASSIST AT CAMP ONAWAY

The list of councillors for Camp Onaway, the girl scout and campfire girls summer outing place has not yet been completed although the directors and a few of the group leaders have been selected.

Miss Eleanor Halls, who has been in charge of the scout work all through the year, and Mrs. Herbert Hackworthy, summer director of the club, will be in charge of the camp which will be in session the last week in July and the first two weeks in August.

The councillors have been picked as far as possible from the leaders of the various scout troops who have been connected with the work in the winter months. Those who have already definitely agreed to go are: Miss Isabelle Milhaupt, Miss Mary Rogers, Miss Josephine Patten, Miss Florence Valentine, Miss Rose Ryan, Miss Ruth Ryan, Miss Genevieve Jones and Miss Helene Harriman.

Warm, sensible clothes are advised for all girls planning to attend camp. One of the easiest ways to be a good sport is to be physically comfortable, the directors say, so that little accidents and unpleasant occurrences do not irritate. The girls will spend most of their time, of course, in scout uniform, since that costume is considered the most practical for hiking. A warm coat is to be a requirement, however, since the nights are cool. A bathrobe also is to be recommended for every girl's equipment. An extra pair of old shoes or sneakers may help out, if the regulation shoes happen to get wet, the girls are told.

TARPON GIVES FISHERMAN THRILLS HE IS SEEKING

The first gigantic leap of a hooked tarpon. Mouth wide open, gills extended, head swelled up like a balloon, he leaps 15 feet in a frenzied effort to shake the hook from his mouth. Tarpon have actually been known to throw the hook from their mouths a distance of 50 feet.

At the height of his leap. Writhing in rage he shakes his mighty body in a vain effort to snap the line which holds him fast.

Like a terrier shaking a rat, this huge tarpon shakes his head just before hitting the water in a last effort to break the line. He puts all the strength of his 154-pound body and all the skill of the cleverest game fish into his frantic endeavors.

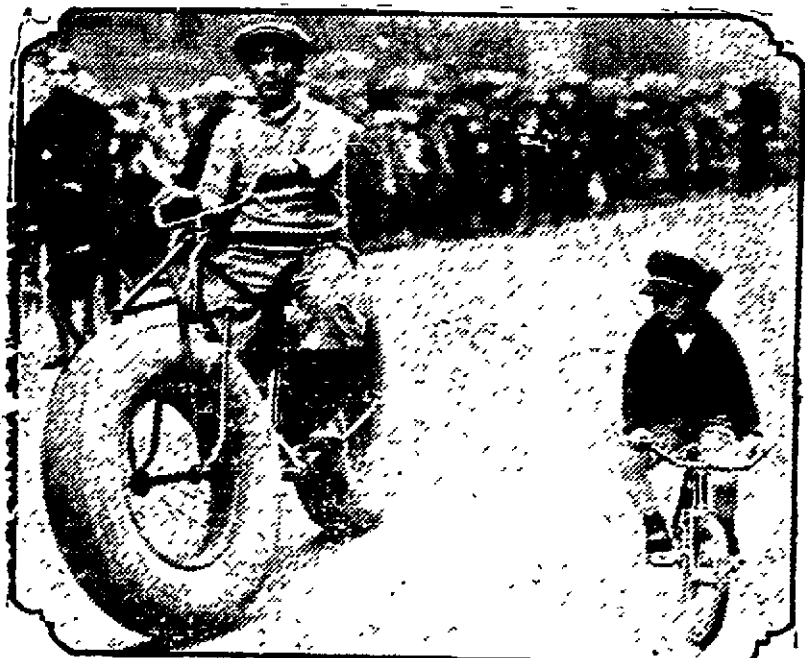

Fighting, ever fighting, is the hooked tarpon. Sometimes they will play with the hook in their mouths for half an hour and then toss it out with a clever shake of the head, as did this clever fellow who is shown going back home with a great splash.

To undertake the higher education it appears that one must start by removing all the old incumbrances, such as shirts and pants. Or perhaps, in connection with their studies of history, University of Pennsylvania students thought it well to illustrate that chapter of the French revolution relating to the "Sans Culottes." historic pantless brigade. Or, again, since the Pantheon was the hall of fame of ancient days, some wise results that seem to indicate that the primitive isn't so far off after all.

Thirty-three persons, all of one family, traveled from Liverpool to Hanley, Saskatchewan. They include families of three generations—Mr. and Mrs. George Bradley, their four married sons and daughter together with their families, whose ages range from 6 weeks to 65 years. They all came from Retford, Nottingham, Bradley, which a ladder is suspended. Swinging from this ladder he mounts the plane as it rises in the air. His wife is the youngest of a family of 17, and has had 11 children. They are journeying to Canada, so Bradley says, because opportunities for the young generation are brighter there.

After Presentation Talk by Past Commander of Legion

"In the name of Ony Johnston post of the American legion, it gives me great pleasure to present to the George D. Eggleston post of the G. A. R., this monument, as a small tribute to the memory of those veterans who have passed, and to the few whose numbers are dwindling fast. May it ever preserve the memory of their heroic deeds, in offering their lives that the nation might live." With these words, Vilas M. Whaley, past commander of the Wisconsin department of the American legion, presented the G. A. R. memorial to the Civil war veterans gathered at Riverside cemetery Saturday to do honor to their heroic dead, with a large assemblage of citizens.

"This is one of the profoundest occasions in the history of our city," Mr. Whaley said. "It marks the fulfillment of the dream of 60 years, and the generosity of the people in presenting the memorial is to be recommended. Special thanks are due to the Post-Crescent for its conduct of the campaign to raise the funds for the completion of this enduring monument."

G. A. R. IS INSPIRATION

"Seeing the veterans of the Civil war assembled here makes me think of that dreary day in April, 1865, when Abraham Lincoln died of the wounds inflicted by an assassin's bullet, for in those days these men were serving their country with the colors. Now, although the single eyes that followed the flag through the storm of battle are dimmed, and the step of the nation's defender is retarded, their spirit still flourishes strong and unweakened. They have been the inspiration of the nation for years. In 1861-1865 they won undying glory, and through their sacrifices it was possible for the country to reach its standards with laurel again in the Spanish-American war, and again in World War I. The example of the G. A. R. served as an inspiration for the boys in both these later wars, and thus the credit for these victories is shared by them as well."

Mr. Whaley's presentation followed immediately after the unveiling of the massive granite cube bearing the name of the George D. Eggleston post, by the Boy and Girl Scouts, and was followed by the speech and song of J. Hanchett, one of the members of the G. A. R.

A touching incident occurred shortly before the presentation. The Legion saxophone band had just finished playing The Vacant Chair after the unveiling. Dr. A. W. Kanouse, one of the few surviving veterans, carried away by the strength of his feelings, said in a trembling voice: "Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet! Let us forget, lest we forget! Salute, boys, salute!" Straightening to attention as well as they could, the little group of aged heroes attempted to comply for the honor of their fallen comrades. Some of them succeeded, others brought their hands nearly to the proper angle but stopped at their eyes to wipe away a tear, and still others, unable to move a hand, stood with bowed heads, trembling with emotion as they thought of the days long gone when they had followed the stars and stripes to victory with the friends whom they soon will meet again.

After the ceremonies at the G. A. R. plot had been concluded the Legionnaires marched to their own plot, while the Spanish-American war veterans and their auxiliary proceeded to do honor to their dead comrades where they lie sleeping. Then the organizations all joined once more, and from the riverbank cast a wreath upon the waters of the Fox River in memory of the sailors and marines at rest beneath the waves. This concluded the ceremony Memorial day, which was one of the most impressive in many years.

ST. OLAF PUPILS WOULD RATHER BE PICKED TO SING IN CHOIR THAN HEAD GRID TEAM

Acceptance as probationary member of St. Olaf Lutheran choir which sings in Lawrence Memorial chapel here on June 10, is one of the greatest thrills the choristers experience, according to one of them. Although thrills are plentiful every day they spend on tour. This shows how keen competition for membership in the choir has become. Every year there are about 300 candidates, and of these about 15 are accepted to replace members lost through graduation or other causes.

"If you happen to be one of the few selected, you experience your first great thrill," said one of the singers. "A student at St. Olaf college would rather be a member of the choir than captain of a championship football team, and those who are admitted gladly sacrifice many other college activities in order to devote their best efforts to choir work."

The requirements of the college provide that members of the choir must maintain a high average in scholastic work and a high standard of personal conduct in order to keep their places. Any member of conduct dismises a member from the chorus, and if a member slumps from the high scholastic requirements in any branch for which he or she has registered it means giving up choral work the next year.

The constitution of the choir also provides that every member must resign at the close of each school year. This gives Dr. P. Malus, Christian, the director, absolute freedom in choosing the best material available, for old members as well as new must try out every year, thus preventing old members from resting on their laurels.

But other thrills also fall to the share of the choristers. The ecstasy of seeing thousands of rare faces, the plaudits of the crowds after each selection, the feeling that thousands of hearts are beating in unison with their own. A vivid instance of this may best be recounted in the words of one of the singers who made the trip to Norway with the choir.

"In one of the coast cities of Norway, Haugesund," the singer said, "the director, an audience of about 2,000, which taxed the capacity of the auditorium to the utmost. Many times that number of people had come in from the mountain valleys and neighboring coast cities who could not get in. After our concert a vast crowd followed the choir down to the wharf where the boats were moored. Here in the square people gathered by the thousand, and stood in silence waiting and watching for a chance to see and perhaps to hear the choir. It was estimated that more than ten thousand people had gathered, for the most part just common peasant and fisher folk, who had not been able to purchase tickets for the concert in the city."

"Finally a temporary director's stand was set up on the ship's foreward deck, and the choir members were called from their staterooms and in the stillness of midnight the choir began to sing to the hearts of these people some of the hymns and melodies known to them all, but rendered as they had never heard them sung before. To be privileged to take part in the singing of those half dozen songs under such circumstances was a thrill, never to be forgotten."

COMPLETE INSTALLATION OF SOUTH SIDE MAINS

Installation of water mains on S. River-st, Calumet and Jefferson-st. has been completed, according to Fred R. Morris, assistant secretary of the water works commission. The work was started several weeks ago and was delayed by several fills through which the trenches had to be dug.

Installation of the S. River-st main was of prime importance to residents of the south side of the Fourth ward. Before the installation of the new water main in that part of the city had only one connection with the water supply, and if this had been cut off the property owners would have been without water. Three thousand six hundred feet of 8-inch pipe was laid on this street. Six-inch pipe was used on Calumet and Jefferson-st. On the former street 1,150 feet were laid and 250 feet was placed on Jefferson-st.

FATHER LEAPS IN PARK POOL TO SAVE CHILD

A baby of about two years was providentially saved from drowning in the fountain city pool in City park into which it had fallen accidentally at about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

The boy, believed to belong to an out-of-town family, was attracted to the fountain around which a large number of children were playing. Ignoring the danger, the baby lifted itself up on its toes to look over the wall of the pool.

The man who appeared to be its father hovered near the child. But as he turned his back to approach the bench where a woman was sitting, the boy reached over too far and slid into the pool. At the woman's scream, the man wheeled about and jumped into the pool for the baby which was lying on its face.

Only an interval of a few seconds had elapsed from the time the baby fell into the water up to that of its removal, and consequently it had not swallowed enough water to harm it, much, spectators said. The child was wrapped in a blanket and was driven hastily away.

BOARDMAN RAPS PACIFISTS IN MEMORIAL TALK

Oshkosh Man Urges Support for Men Who Risk All to Make Their Country Great

Neenah—Memorial day passed off quietly in Neenah. Stores and manufacturing plants were closed all day. The feature of the day was the parade in the afternoon. Civic societies, military companies, boys' brigade and scouts, city officials, the band and the Eagle drum corps all took part. Bringing up the rear were citizens in cars. The parade was fully a mile in length. Menasha Legion post had charge of the program and the parade was formed in that city and marched to Neenah where the Neenah contingent fell in and continued the march to Oak Hill cemetery where the program was carried out. Civil war veterans of the two cities were taken to the G. A. R. lot in the cemetery and took an active part in the ritualistic services which ended up the day's program.

Mayor N. G. Remmel of Menasha, introduced Major Robert P. Boardman, speaker of the afternoon, whose address follows in part:

"In America today the machinery of industry is silent and the avenues of commerce are closed. In the forest the stroke of the ax is silent and in the fields the husbandman has ceased his toil. Throughout a broad and mighty land we have brought to a pause the affairs of a busy life and we have met here together in the renewal of a solemn pledge.

"We are come here today to acknowledge our debt of gratitude to fellow Americans who have created and preserved for us the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, to them who have died in her defense. Out of the achievements of yesterday comes the inspiration of today, in pausing thus to commemorate the devotion of America's heroes, we increase our own devotion and add to our own love for the country which they made great. In our hearts, we resolve to be ever worthy of the great inheritance which they have left with us.

"And so it is that Decoration Day is peculiarly the day of the G. A. R. of the men who saw America safely through her gravest crisis and severest trial. Time heals all wounds; and a cold war between food and a cold bitterness and hate are gone. We do homage alike to Blue and Gray and we recognize that out of their great struggle there emerges a new America, better than the old; an America which had been purified of the evil of slavery and cured of the cancer of secession; a greater America, united and strong and standing four-square to the world.

"Inspired by the examples of the past and sobered by their own experience in the Great War, there has come forward a great company of men without fear or favor to serve their country in time of peril. You will find them today in the ranks of the National Guard and of the Organized Reserve. They are the backbone of America's defense, the guarantors of her future securities.

"There are some in this country who have it otherwise. The lessons of history do not impress them; the voice of the past never reaches their ears. They preach the false doctrine of non-resistance to aggression. They challenge the right of a free people to defend themselves against attack and to preserve for posterity the institutions for which they have died.

"To them this day of memories and prayer means nothing. Our reverence to our sacred dead is idle. We thank God that our country is not governed by such as these, and we turn with relief and reassurance to the example of our citizen soldier, to the men who believe that national integrity is of higher value than personal safety, that their country's destiny is greater than their own ego.

"These are the true Americans, men of our own kind. They serve us in time of war; it is for us to stand with them in time of peace. Let us give them of our loyalty and our support. Let us hold up their hands and help to make them strong—that America may be safe, that God willing, American youth may not be called upon to shed its blood again."

Music of the program was furnished by a quartet and the band and salute to the departed heroes was fired by a squad of Co. I.

THIS MAN HOPES TO BE CONGRESSMAN SOME DAY

Stephensville, Mont.—Time nor defeat cannot smother the political ambitions that burn within John McLaughlin, village blacksmith here.

Five times the sturdy Scotchman who used to be a Methodist preacher has run for office. First time, back in 1910, it was for state Legislature. In 1916 his ambition soared. He announced himself a candidate for Congress. And regularly every four years since then he enters the congressional race.

Each time he has been defeated. But that doesn't discourage John.

For each time he has polled a little heavier vote. Some day, he says, he'll be elected. Who knows? McLaughlin came here in 1895 a pastor of the local Methodist church. Six days a week he labored at his forge and on the seventh day he preached. A few years ago he quit the pulpit entirely.

In his spare time he has studied law and taken a normal course by mail.

June Groom Does Little Of Paying

So far as pomp and preparation are concerned, weddings seem to have been created for brides only. Of course there is always a groom, but little attention is paid him. He may buy the finest sort of wedding clothes, but no one knows or cares what he wears, so long as he does not mar the picture.

The groom is an important adjunct, however. There are certain things he must do in regard to bouquets and gifts to ushers that are just as confusing as the important wedding rehearsal.

Although the bride's family assume most of the details of the church wedding, the clergyman who is to perform the ceremony is interviewed by the bridegroom as soon as the day is set, and his services are engaged, as well as permission to use the church.

The bride's family arrange for transportation to and from the church of the clergyman, the bridesmaids and all members of the household.

HERE COMES THE GROOM
The groom provides the bride's bouquet, and presents his best man and the ushers with ties, gloves and with some small gift, such as cigarette case, belt buckle or cuff links. The groom arranges for transportation of the ushers and for the car to take himself and best man to the church and for the one which will carry himself and his bride away from her father's house after the reception.

The groom should make preparations for the wedding trip long ahead of time, in order to secure the best accommodations. No matter how wealthy the bride and how poor the groom, he must pay the expenses of the honeymoon trip even if it is only a few days' duration and spent at a nearby place. He must pay a fee to the clergyman, and whether it is a $10 gold piece or a crisp $100 bill, it is placed in an envelope and taken in charge by the best man who hands it to the clergyman in the vestry room immediately after the ceremony.

DOESN'T WEAR HIS TOPPER
While the bride changes her bridal dress for the wedding journey, the groom goes to a room reserved for him and changes into an ordinary sack coat which the best man has taken there for him before the ceremony. He does not wear top hat for boutonniere on the wedding trip. The groom's clothes should be as plain as possible, but need not actually be so.

The bride should choose her going-away clothes according to the journey she is to take. If she is to go on a long motor trip, she wears a small hat and a wrap of some sort over whatever suit she wears. If she is going on train or boat she wears a traveling dress such as she would wear under ordinary circumstances. She should not dress so as to attract attention and label herself a bride.

PASTE THIS IN YOUR HAT
The bride's parents are the heaviest investors for the wedding, be it large or small.

To sum up the groom's expenses they are:

The engagement ring—as fine as he can afford.

The wedding gift to the bride—jewelry or something for her personal adornment.

The marriage license.

His bachelor dinner.

A personal gift to his best man and ushers, beside their ties, gloves and boutonnières.

The bride's bouquet, and in some places the bridesmaids' bouquets. Although this expense generally is borne by the bride's parents.

The wedding ring.

The clergyman's fee.

And all expenses from the time the bride and groom enter a car to leave the bride's home.

TAFFETA RETURNS TO FAVOR WITH DRESS OF OLD VICTORIAN TYPE

FRONT AND BACK VIEW OF ONE OF THE NEWEST TAFFETA CREATIONS FOR EVENING WEAR. THE DRESS IS OF THE VICTORIAN TYPE WITH SPANISH PANTALETTES SHOWING JUST BELOW THE LONG SKIRT.

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

New York.—The rustle of silk is about to be heard throughout the land, because taffeta is returning to favor as fast as it can.

"Taffeta, to be sure," points out Henri Bendel, New York fashion designer, "is no longer the loud speaker it used to be. Manufacturers have muffled and silenced it discreetly and produced a fabric almost as soft as velvet and as light as crepe, but it retains all the glamor of its articulate days."

To prove his point, he showed me the new model reproduced in the photograph, which is in vivid orange and flame taffeta, and has several new fashion points.

"Notice the skirt on bouffant lines," he said. "It is 12 inches from the floor in front and has a train in back that yields at least that much to the carpet. It isn't the skimpy court train that we have been wearing, but the good old Victorian type that actually sweeps the floor and isn't wrapped about the arm."

"Beneath this skirt, showing unashamedly in front are pantalettes of Spanish lace mounted on chiffon. They match the lace shawl of the shoulders to a deep point in the back. A charming feminine touch is added in the taffeta flowers of henna flame and flesh that are applied to the side front."

This outfit, he agreed, is an extreme style, suited only to the youthful figure, the expansive pocketbook, and the distinctive carriage, but it shows the tendency to return to the more elaborate and more ornate frock, for evening at least.

"Some of the most advanced of Parisian designers are using taffeta frocks with elaborately draped bows in the back that recall the old-fashioned bustle," he continued. "Others are introducing fullness at the sides and back. There are taffeta frocks for street that are almost tailored. The most startling innovations are being created in 'afternoon'."

Regarding the struggle that has been going on all spring between the simple and the elaborate frock, Mr. Bendel reports it is being amicably settled by every woman doing just as she pleases.

"Naturally," he said, "for traveling, morning and sport wear, the simple dress on good lines is the best choice, but for evening and even for afternoon there is greater latitude in the choice of color and material than there has been in several seasons. The ban has been lifted from beads, embroideries and all the ornate trimmings that were under the padlock, so to speak, last year."

This does not mean that the simple crepe and chiffon frocks, untrammelled, are not excellent styles, they are. And they have a youthfulness and occasionally a distinction it is almost impossible to achieve in a more elaborate model. But there is variety and elasticity to the present style. Nothing that is really effective and beautiful is verboten.

"The really beautiful styles of every age are never lost. They become part of the permanent collection from which we must always draw for new modes."

She Starts Life Anew At Age Of Sixty

San Francisco.—Benigna Green's 60 years have been crowded with achievements and reverses enough to satisfy most folks, and sickness enough to dishearten many half her age.

But at 60, she tells the world she is just beginning to live. At this advanced age, when most people are retiring, she has mastered the extremely difficult Chinese language and will go to China as an educator in a government college.

Her biography is a remarkable story of the victory of an indomitable spirit over poor health, a pain-racked body and several financial setbacks.

At 20 she was one of America's pioneer women stenographers and the first woman to open a public stenographic office in Columbus, O. She also did court reporting for several years.

She became a specialist in convention reporting. She traveled all over America to make verbatim reports and edit official books of the American Medical Association, the American Ceramic Society, civil and mining engineers, organizations and other technical groups.

Still she wasn't satisfied. With her husband and daughter, she spent 10 years farming in Texas. She was an official of various state farm organizations, and organized the Texas farm women. Then a hurricane ruined her ranch.

Sickness was overcoming the woman, but with the remnants of the livestock that escaped the hurricane, she put her daughter through college before she was forced to enter a sanitarium, where medical specialists told her she must expect to remain a helpless cripple.

Arthritic rheumatism had attacked her hands. Doctors said it would gradually spread to other joints. But after three months, instead of becoming worse, Benigna Green was more than earning her sanitarium expenses by editing a series of medical books the hospital head was writing. Then came a year devoted to volunteer work at the Washington headquarters of the Woman's National Party during the suffrage campaign. Since then, mother and daughter have spent their time gypsying all over the Pacific coast, while the mother worked to overcome her physical handicap and do worth while work in the world.

Chinese interested her. She studied the Chinese language at every opportunity.

Her 60th birthday, celebrated with gorgeous Chinese ceremony, marked a double victory, her mastery of arthritic rheumatism and the spoken language of China. To prove the latter she made several speeches in Chinese; in proof of the former, she joined in the dancing at her birthday party.

"In China, the first birthday considered worthy of high honor is the 60th, because not until then are folks supposed to have reached years of great discretion or to have attained great wisdom," she says. "By the time they are expected to be qualified to render more valuable service to mankind."

"And that is my feeling exactly, and why at 60, I announced my intention of entering China's educational work."

She has got to shoulder this responsibility and probably Leslie will do, but it won't make for her happiness, my dear.

The whole thing resolves itself into keeping John Alden Prescott thinking he is the great "I am," and after all, however much we talk of woman's individuality, that seems to be what most women promise when they take upon themselves the vows of marriage.

Dearest, this isn't a very nice letter for a newly married woman to her husband, but thank God, you understand.

RUFFLED DRESS

Each of the ruffles that adorn this frock seems to have a different idea of where to begin and where to stop, and only one feels any responsibility to go ahead and circumnavigate the hem. However, the effect is very French and very unusual and it makes a very distinctive frock on a simple white crepe de chine foundation. A one-sided belt is another original touch.

Adventures Of The Twins

THE MARCH HARE TALKS IN RIDDLES

Suddenly the March Hare stopped. "I declare," said he anxiously. "I forgot completely. I completely forgot. I certainly did."

"What?" asked Nick. "What did you forget, Mister Hare?"

"I forgot the notification," said the March Hare impatiently.

"The notification—what?" said the Twins together.

"The notification," said the March Hare. "I have to notify somebody about something so that somebody else won't know that something has happened."

"For goodness sake," said Nancy. "You're a regular riddle book, Mister Hare, that's exactly what you sound like."

"What's that?" said the hare absently. "What sounds like a riddle? Because I said that if a certain person didn't do something or rather if he did do something, a second person would take advantage and make trouble just because the first person didn't do it! The ideal! It's all as clear as butter."

The Twins laughed merrily. "Whatever are you talking about, Mister March Hare? We don't understand a word. What is it all about?"

"Snakes," said the hare so shortly that the Twins jumped.

"Snakes!" they shouted.

"Yes, s-n-a-k-e-s, snakes," said the hare with a worried look.

"You see it's this way. Right under those rocks the whole snake family is asleep. They haven't the least idea that it is so near spring, in fact that spring is here. And I want them to stay asleep as long as possible. There is only one thing that will wake them up and that mustn't happen."

"What?" asked Nick.

"Thunder," said the March Hare. "I shall have to get word to Mister Toad to blow the weather man to keep the nuisance fairies locked up tight. If the Storm Boys get out, they'll begin pounding their drums up in the sky, pop—every snake this side of China will wake up like a shot."

"They won't sleep all summer, will they?" asked Nancy. "They have to wake up sometime."

"Sure," said the March Hare. "but not until all the little toads and all the little frogs and all the little eels have a good start and can hop away as soon as they see Mister Snake coming. The longer the spring thunder holds off, the better chance they will have to grow."

"Then let's hurry and send word to Mister Sprinkle Bow," said Nancy anxiously, looking up at some black clouds.

But before the March Hare could answer, flash—crash—bang! Such a loud clap of thunder split the sky that everybody jumped about a foot.

"Too late now," said the March Hare. "And all because I talked so much. That's what comes of talking instead of acting. Now I'll have to go and telephone to Mrs. Toad to watch her children and not leave

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

Breakfast—Stewed rhubarb, bacon sandwiches, nut rolls, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Hominy mold with fish and eggs, onion sandwiches, ginger snaps, canned peaches, milk, tea.

Dinner—Tomato bouillon, mock sausage, steamed rice, creamed spinach, floating island, sponge cake, graham rolls, milk, coffee.

The nut rolls are suggested for the grown-up members of the family. Fruit, rolls and coffee make a delicious "light" breakfast for persons who do not "put in" a strenuous morning.

The bacon sandwiches consist of crisp broiled bacon, hot buttered toast with a cream sauce poured over the whole.

NUT ROLLS
One yeast cake, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 1 cup milk, flour, ¼ cup granulated sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons softened butter, 4 tablespoons brown sugar, ½ cup finely chopped nuts, 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Sift milk. Dissolve yeast cake in lukewarm water. When milk is lukewarm add yeast cake and 1½ cups flour. Beat well and let rise in a warm place until light.

Add granulated sugar, egg, well beaten, salt and melted butter. Beat well and add flour to knead. Knead until elastic to the touch and let rise in a warm place until double its bulk.

Roll in a long strip to about ¼ inch thickness, spread with softened butter, sprinkle with sugar and nuts and roll up like a jelly roll. Cut in inch slices and place on a buttered pan, cut side down. Let rise again and bake twenty-five minutes in a hot oven.

GINGER SNAPS
One cup light brown sugar, 1 cup butter, 1 cup molasses, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ½ teaspoon ginger, 1 teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, flour to make a soft dough to roll.

Cream butter and sugar and add molasses in which soda has been dissolved. Add egg well beaten. Add 1 cup flour. Add vinegar and spices. Mix thoroughly and add "flour" to make a soft dough. Roll on a floured molding board as thinly as possible. Cut with cookie cutter first dipped in flour and bake on an oiled and floured cookie sheet in a moderate oven.

CURLED COO FOR HATS
Curled coo is very much the vogue in Paris for hat trimming, particularly for the small tuitans that seem to be molded on the head.

TO MAKE FERNS GROW
Keep your ferns in a deep container alone for a minute. And a lot of other people besides.

The rain began to beat and the March Hare said that would bring all the snakes out sure even if the thunder hadn't. "Oh, well! People should watch their children, anyway," said he. "I'm not going to worry."

Health Hints

TEETH SHOULD BE BRUSHED
A. "Clean tooth never decays," reads an ad.

Whether this is a whole truth, or just a catchy trade phrase, Mrs. Mann never questions.

She believes in clean teeth.

So she sees that each of her children are taught the proper way to use a brush. And she also sees that the children's teeth are examined regularly.

Most schools now have dentists whose business is to examine all the children's teeth, and recommend to the parents measures to remedy any defects.

Teeth should be brushed at least twice a day. They should be brushed not only up and down, but crosswise as well.

Food particles have a habit of lodging between the teeth where they escape the brush unless the brush is moved up and down as well as across the teeth.

Many tooth brushes are too soft. Gritty tooth powder and paste should not be used.

The substitute cuts the enamel, and opens a way for decay.

Tartar gathers around the gums, causing them to loosen from the teeth. This should be removed by a dentist.

Tooth brushes should be kept clean, and sterilized at least once a week.

WILL SET THE COLOR
To set the color in green fabrics, use four ounces of alum to a tubful of water.

WASHING CRETONNES
After washing cretonnes, rinse in water in which rice has been boiled. This will restore the original "body."

HAVE WIDE STREAMERS
Many of the new hats have wide streamers or scarfs about the crown that also wrap about the throat and have one loose end that falls below the waistline.

Gas on Stomach
Made Her Nervous

For many years Mrs. Cook had gas on the stomach and was nervous and short of breath. Finally she took Adlerika and it did her a world of good. Adlerika helps any case gas on the stomach unless due to deep-seated causes. Because it is such an excellent intestinal evacuant it is the very best remedy for constipation—it often works in one hour and never gripes.

Household Hints

FOR SALADS
Vegetables to be used for salads should be cooked the preceding day.

REMOVE ALKALI
If you will boil a little vinegar occasionally in the tea kettle it will remove the alkaline substance that is deposited along the edge.

LEMON HELPFUL
A teaspoon of lemon juice in a cup of hot water often relieves a bilious headache.

REDUCES FLAVOR
If you cook onions over night in cold water they will lose much of their strong flavor.

The Tangle

LETTER FROM RUTH BURKE TO WALTER BURKE, CONTINUED

It is astonishing, Walter, dear, what a difference it makes to a man whether he is concerned in the funny incident or his wife is appealing to his sense of humor.

I wonder just exactly how Jack would look upon it if I should call him up some night to tell him that I didn't think that he appreciated Leslie.

You see the position, however, it puts Leslie in. In some way she has got to get hold of Jack and straighten him out. But, as she says, I can hardly see how she can call him up and apologize for something that he himself has done.

I told her that most men expected that their wives would ask and let them graciously accord forgiveness to them for the sins their husbands themselves had committed.

In this case, however, the act is too palpable. By no stretch of good nature could Leslie make it appear other than what it is.

This is the reason I am writing to you, dear man. I want you to tell me what to do under the circumstances. The whole affair seems to me to be particularly unfortunate—a kind of a vicious circle, no matter where you stop you come back to the same place. First here is Jack who has been put in as manager of a great business which should be given every ounce of his energy, his thought and talent.

Mr. Hamilton seems to have had great confidence in him and even Sally Atherton says that he could do all that was required of him if he were himself. But he is as temperamental as a boy and somebody has got to keep him quiet and above all things happy for the sake of the business. If it weren't for that business I would very quickly tell Leslie to let Mr. Jack Prescott go to the devil in his own way and in his own time, but there are over a thousand families dependent on the Hamilton Steel Works and the Hamiltons who have now been narrowed down to these people.

If it were just the loss of money to the Hamiltons themselves that would be comparatively easy, but all these men, women and children must be taken into consideration. The business must go on to success regardless of anyone's feelings, and it seems that for the business to go on successfully Jack's selfish feelings must be considered first, last and all the time.

Then there is Leslie's condition, when of course the idea of separation from her husband must be repugnant to her. So here is poor Leslie being ground between two stones.

BLUES TAKE TWO PLACES IN TRACK MEET AT ST. PAUL

McConnell and Stair Cop in High Jump; Cornell Takes Hard-fought Victory

Placing two men in the high jump, Lawrence college track team took last place with 2-7-10 points in the Midwest Conference track and field meet at Hamline university, St. Paul, on Friday. McConnell tied Christopher Riton for second in the event, which was taken by Gill, Beloit, with a leap of 5 feet 9 inches. Stair tied four other men for fourth place in the event. The Lawrence men apparently were off form and failed to come up to marks they had made in previous meets this season. Rehebel led the field in the half mile for almost the entire race but was outspurred at the finish. However, the Lawrence men displayed strength in their respective events and with the experience gained should form a strong team next year.

The mile relay, the final race of a long afternoon program, brought Cornell college of Mount Vernon, Iowa first honors in games after a thrilling neck and neck fight with the Carleton team.

Cornell was forced to set a new record in the relay to beat Knox, with Carleton coming a close third. The well-balanced Cornell quartet ran the event in 3 minutes 23-6-10 seconds, bettering the old mark by two seconds. Carleton placed heavily in the distance runs and low hurdles to take second place in the meet with 29 points as compared to 22-10 points for Cornell.

The Knox team previously doped to cop the meet finished third with 24-4-10 points, closely pressed by Beloit with 23 points. Coe, with Gillespie starting, amassed 19-1-2 points for fifth place. Monmouth was next with 16, and Ripon, Hamline, and Lawrence followed with 11-2-5, and 7-10 points, respectively.

Six new records were set, four of them in the field events and two on the track. Nesbit of Beloit pulled the surprise of the meet when he beat Senn, Knox captain, in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes. In the century Nesbit set a new record of 10 seconds, lowering his old mark by 1-10 of a second, by virtue of these two wins Nesbit won individual scoring honors, accounting for 10 of Beloit's points.

Christopherson of Ripon scoring in the broad jump, high jump, and high hurdles, was second high with 9-1-2 points. Health, a freshman at Knox, shattered the javelin record by 12 feet hurling the spear 184 feet 3-4 inches. Gillespie, Coe's all-round star, beat his own record in the discus with a toss of 135 feet 11-3-4 inches, while Garwick of Carleton heaved the shot 42 feet 1-3-4 inches for a new mark in this event. Gill of Beloit added 1-8 of an inch to the high jump record with his leap of 5 feet 9 inches.

WAUPACA COPS 1ST MANAWA BATTLE

Good Hurling Features 2 to 1 Game Between Waupaca-co League Squads

Waupaca-Playing its first game of the year Waupaca city baseball team defeated the Manawa squad by a score of 2 to 1 Saturday at Penny Athletic park at this city. The showing of the team pleased the crowd of local fans that witnessed the game and promised well for the remainder of the season. Williams started in the box for Waupaca and breezed along nicely, not allowing a Manawa run during his stay on the hill. He was forced out with a wrenched knee in the eighth and Madsen of Basketball fame took his place with a score of 1 to 0 for Waupaca. He was wild, however, and was jerked before the close of the inning. Emmett Woods dropping over from first base to take the job on the mound. He held Manawa to one run during the remainder of the game. The famous Roman and Roman battery worked for the losers and held the Waupacites well during the entire game. Both teams got nine hits and neither got more than two in an inning. The lineup were:

Manawa—Moen leftfield; P. Roman, third base; Proker, second base; Lindahl, first base; C. Roman, pitcher; Hageman, centerfield; Grun, right field; F. Roman, shortstop; J. Roman, catcher. Waupaca—Smith, catcher; Wood, first base and pitcher; Pope, centerfield; William, pitcher; Madsen, leftfield and pitcher; Shambaugh, second base; Hardier, shortstop; Krueger, shortstop; Klatt, third base; Simon rightfield.

Nine Kentucky Derby stakes have been won by eastern sportsmen since 1915 the year in which Regret, owned by Harry Payne Whitney, scored her memorable triumph. Regret's victory was notable in that she is the only mare that ever came home in first place in the classic.

He was suffering from hemorrhages and several fractured ribs.

Stecher won the first fall with a body scissors and arm lock.

Stecher negotiated the second fall with the same hold after the veteran Pole had tried to catch the big Nebraskan with a flying mare.

WINNERS OF THE BIG WEEKEND

Indianapolis—A new speed king was crowned here Saturday afternoon when Peter De Palolo, nephew and protégé of the veteran racer, Ralph De Palma, drove his roaring Dusenbergs over the finish line, a winner, in the thirteenth annual 500 mile motor classic.

De Paolo completed the distance in 4:56:39.47, a record for the brick track here, and to do this he drove an average of 101.13 miles an hour.

Behind him, for a close second, was Benny Hill, driving Dave Lewis' junior eight special, the only front wheel driven car in the race. For the last fifty miles, these two fought for the lead, with Hill a lap behind because of having been forced to pit for tire changes, and the 145,000 persons who packed the stands and the field showed the first real enthusiasm of the day as these two raced down the straightaways, the superchargers on their high speed motors screaming as they pressed the throttles to the floor.

Michigan City, Ind. — Ed (Strangler) Lewis, claimant of the world's heavyweight championship, retaliated for the disputed defeat of Wayne (Big) Munn, former Nebraska athlete, administered to him in Kansas City last winter when he defeated the mat behemoth in straight falls, here Saturday. Munn taking advantage of his maddening left and fresh strength took the first fall from Lewis in 24 minutes and 55 seconds.

His great size proved more of a handicap than an advantage in the remaining fall, however, Lewis wore him down by the application of an even score of headlocks and took the second fall in 17 minutes and 12 seconds.

Lewis trotted for the third and deciding fall while Munn ambled slowly down the aisle, an indication to knowing ones that the third fall was to be over very quickly. It was seven rounds of headlocks applied in seven minutes and 12 seconds that erased the black mark against Lewis' record noted by the disputed Kansas City defeat.

New York—A new light heavyweight champion was crowned here Saturday night when Paul Berlenbach outpunched and outslugged Mike McGigue, the Irish champion, who won the title from Battling Siki, the Sengalese.

Berlenbach was given the decision at the end of fifteen rounds of rather tame fighting, but in which he displayed about all the aggressiveness that the ring contained. McGigue as a champion apparently was in deadly fear of Berlenbach's renowned punching ability, and he backed off and scuffled and ran away for all except one or two of the fifteen rounds.

Neither man was punished severely. Berlenbach, although slower, landed more blows than did the champion, for Mike seemed content to keep his long left arm extended and continually backed away. Mike left the ring with a cut over his left eye and bleeding from the mouth, but he was no wise in bad condition. Berlenbach was virtually unmarked.

Papermakers Split Even In Weekend Battles In Eastern Wisconsin Loop

Chilton Wins 2 to 1 Game While Sawdust City Squad Loses by 16-15 Count

Fox River Paper Co., Appleton's entry in the Eastern Wisconsin Baseball League got off to a fair start over the weekend, losing to the strong Chilton team at that city in a 2 to 0 battle on Memorial day and coming from behind to trim the Carver Ice Creams of Oshkosh by a 16 to 15 score Sunday at Brandt park. Both games were hard-fought, neither being settled until the final out.

In the Chilton game the locals scored in the fifth on hits by Radtke and Brockhaus, but an error combined with hits by Suttner and Menzelwitz gave the home crew two runs in the last half of the inning and both teams went scoreless the rest of the way. H. Turnow allowed Chilton five hits. Brockhaus handled his shoos. Schmidt allowed the Fox River crew eight scattered blows. Radtke of the Papermakers was the star of the fray, setting three safe blows in four tries.

In Sunday's fray, Oshkosh knocked A. Poca from the box in the first inning, driving in 6 runs. They continued the drive on Refkio who was removed for the veteran H. Turnow in the fifth with the score 11 to 1 for the invaders. Turnow allowed the visitors 5 scattered hits for the rest of the going and Fox River clouted the pill hard enough to drive two enemy twirlers to the showers, scoring 15 runs in the last four rounds to eke out a one-score victory. Klundt with four safe hits in five attempts kept the Bats crew in the running.

No More Athletics For Dubuque—They're Tainted

Dubuque, Ia.—Athletics have been discontinued at the University of Dubuque, President Karl F. Wetstone announced Saturday. In a formal statement, Dr. Wetstone declared that so much unscrupulous competition for athletics has developed between schools that he must take the university out of intercollegiate athletics or sacrifice his moral principles.

He laid the blame on "state institutions," saying that they have set the pace by paying high salaries to coaches and athletics directors and

Yanks, With Ruth In Suit, Hope To Lick 1924 Champs

By Associated Press
New York—The New York Yankees enter Monday upon a home series against the champion Washington Senators with new hope growing out of the expected return to the lineup of Babe Ruth and his mighty bat.

Improvement in the club's morale and attack are looked for by Manager Huggins, although he does not expect much of Babe in the way of home runs for two months of illness have left the batting champion still weak.

The Hugmen made a desperate effort Sunday but after 12 innings they bowed to the Red Sox 9 to 6, as Boston bunched hits off Shawkey.

Philadelphia dropped one to the Senators, 4 to 3. Bucky Harris' singles with the bases full in the ninth driving home the deciding counter.

Four home runs figured in the Braves' triumph over the White Sox, 15 to 11. George Sisler leading the attack with a homer, a triple and three singles. St. Louis gathered 23 hits for a total of 49 bases.

Cleveland handed Detroit a 6 to 4 trouncing in spite of a belated ninth inning rally in which all the Tigers' runs were scored.

The Pirates' winning streak of seven straight games in the National League was broken by the Cubs, who pounded two Pittsburgh pitchers for 13 hits to win by 11 to 2.

Blake let the Corsairs down with four hits. Charley Hartnett hung up his 14th home run of the season in addition to a triple and double.

BABE MAKES 1925 DEBUT ON MONDAY

New York—Babe Ruth will make his 1925 debut at the Yankee stadium Monday. In the opening game of the series between the Yankees and Washington, the big slugger will take his regular place in right field. He also will appear in his regular position in the batting order.

This news was given out by club officials Sunday. They said further that the Babe is fully recovered from his ailments.

STECHEER TO BE FREED IF ZYBYSKO IS UNHURT

St. Louis, Mo.—The technical charge of "assault with intent to kill" upon which Joe Stecher, Nebraskan heavyweight wrestler, was arrested after his match with Stanislaus Zyzsko here Saturday, will probably be dismissed when the hearing is held June 10. Zyzsko last night reported that, except for a slight stiffness, he was in excellent health. Stecher was arrested and released on bond as a precautionary measure, the police explained, because it was reported after the bout that Zyzsko was unconscious and that his ribs were broken by Stecher's scissors hold.

OHIO STATE SEEKING BIG TEN BALL TITLE

On top of its Big Ten victory in basketball, Ohio State seems bent on adding another championship to the Buckeye list via baseball. To date the Columbus team looks to be the class of the Western Conference and stands an excellent chance of annexing the title.

Fans gave Rogers Hornsby, new pilot of the St. Louis Cardinals, an enthusiastic welcome upon his first appearance as manager. The day was observed by St. Louis with a 5 to 2 victory over the Reds, Rhem holding Cincinnati to six hits.

WORLD WAR WAS BUT BEGINNING OF GREAT TASK

America's Greatest Responsibility Is Promoting Peace, Keller Says in Memorial Address

America has never dedicated itself to a greater task than to assume the responsibilities outlined by President Coolidge of making every possible contribution toward organizing nations and peoples in the aspirations and ways of peace, said Mr. Keller, Sr., told a capacity audience in Lawrence Memorial chapel in the Memorial day address Saturday afternoon. Mr. Keller reviewed what America had accomplished in the wars she has fought and then said that it is up to the people of this country to determine if the ideals which prompted America's entrance into the World war are to be realized.

"America has blazed politically for the world the paths of liberty, justice, equality and opportunity and has advanced the cause of humanity but our task is but begun," Mr. Keller said. He urged the American people on Memorial day to dedicate themselves to the proposition of peace so that those who died shall not have died in vain.

"Of all the days set apart by our National Government for public observance, none is more beautiful in thought, richer in sentiment or enkindles a greater or more profound spirit of patriotism than Memorial Day. Memorial Day—a day of memories," Mr. Keller said. "Memories of approaching storm. Memories of call to arms. Memories of farewell to loved ones; of camp; of march; of skirmish; of bloody battle of death. Memories of comrades of buddies. Memories of loved ones at home; of handshakes of partings of sufferings. Memories of returning home; of the joys that filled your hearts as you again looked into the eyes of those you loved and clasped them to your breast. Memories of the pangs that rent your souls because of the vacant chairs that bade you solemn welcome upon your return."

"It is indeed a day of sacred memories. It is a day also of glorious memories. Of duty seen and duty done. Of high purpose and courage. Of execution. Of lofty patriotism and unselfish service; of willingness to do and to die for a great cause."

SEASON OF LIFE

"Approximately and in deep reverence the Grand Army of the Republic selected and Congress later affirmed, for Memorial Day the most beautiful of all the seasons of the year—sweet spring time. That season when nature is returning to life. When trees are again leafing; when buds are bursting forth; when birds renew their glad songs, and the air is heavy with the sweet scent of nature's choicest flowers. When Mother Earth is clothed in all her loveliness, our Government, your Government and my Government—our Country, asks us to remember our heroes—to salute the living and to strew the graves of the departed with spring time's loveliest blossoms and to meditate upon the tasks that they accomplished. And so we are assembled here today, to do honor to the men, eye and to the women, who served our Country in the hour of its need."

"America stands fortunate among the nations of the world, in that she has never drawn the sword except in a righteous cause; in the interests of humanity and the advancement of justice, equality and liberty among men."

"The Revolutionary War was fought to the end that a Nation might be brought forth on this Continent dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal and that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights and that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

"The War of 1812 maintained these rights and hurled back advances made upon them."

"In 1848 America heard the cry for Freedom coming from what now is Texas and valiantly did America give aid to those struggling for their liberty."

NATION'S SAVIORS

"It is not necessary for me to say what you Veterans of 1861 and 1898, you Veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic accomplished. It is indelibly written upon the pages of history. Not only did you maintain the Union 'one and indivisible' not only did you wipe out the blot of slavery from the fairer face of America, but you by your heroic and never to be forgotten deeds, insured as a government of the people, for the people and by the people."

"Ah, well do we remember how the boys of 1861, brought liberty and freedom and justice to the people of that small, old Porto Rico and set the Philippines on the high road to complete independence."

"And as to the World War, that tremendous event is too recent to be correctly judged as to its final results. Democracy, however, seemed to be in danger. Democracy appeared to be in the danger of being dominated by the few. Our own rights were being violated and our citizens ruthlessly assailed. It was then that a cry came from the Nation's Capitol 'Make the World Safe for Democracy.' Let us war, to end war—and from every hearth and hamlet, from cities, towns and States, there rallied around the standard of our Country, the Nation's best. Battered and bloodied, the boys of 1861 to 1898 and the boys of 1917-1918 heard President Wilson's call as you boys of 1861 heard Father Abraham's call. The boys of 1898 heard President McKinley's call, and as the boys of 1917-1918 heard the call of their Commanders in Chief."

"Five million, checked around the

JUNE 30 7 P.M.

This star map shows the heavens as they appear at 9 p. m. June 1, 5 p. m. June 15 and 7 p. m. June 30 in 35 degrees north latitude. A change of 5 or 10 degrees in latitude makes little difference in the appearance of the heavens so the map may be used in all parts of the United States.

The map should be held over the head, or inverted, with the top toward the north to view the constellations as they appear in the heavens. The constellation of Bootes, The Herdsman, is directly east of the zenith or point overhead. The brilliant orange-hued Arcturus in Bootes and the bluish-white Vega in Lyra, which is standard that we all love. Two million crossed the broad Atlantic and there on the bloody fields of France preserved the best traditions of the soldiers, the sailors and the Marines of this great Republic.

"They proved for all time to come that the American can fight; that he fears not the best armies in the world; that he will not fight except in a righteous cause; that he is patient and slow to be aroused but when aroused he fights and when he fights there is no stopping him."

"War is hell," so said General Sherman. "It must not be again! It must not be again!" So spoke President Harding on the docks at Hoboken, N. J., May 23, 1921, when greeting the bodies of 5,212 heroes that were brought from France to find a final resting place in their own homeland. We are in this war to end war, said President Wilson.

"The Revolutionary war was fought to establish a Nation of freedom. This was accomplished."

"The war of 1812 was fought to maintain rights secured. This was accomplished."

"The war of 1848 was fought to help Texas to secure her independence. This was accomplished."

"The war of 1861 to 1865 was fought to preserve the Union and to wipe the stain of slavery from America's fair name. For the good of the world and humanity—Thank God—this was accomplished."

"The war of 1898 was fought to relieve Cuba from cruelty and to win for her the blessings of liberty. This was accomplished."

over in the northeast, are now the two brightest stars in view.

Arcturus can always be found by prolonging the handle of the Big Dipper toward the southeast about 30 degrees, which is approximately the extent of the Big Dipper itself. One will have no difficulty in finding the Big Dipper directly west of the zenith.

The zodiacal constellation of Virgo, the Maiden, is directly on the meridian due south. The first magnitude star, Spica, represents the ear of wheat that the Maiden holds in her hand, symbolic of the harvest.

The planet Saturn is now between Libra and Virgo some distance to the east of Spica and in excellent position for observation. A small telescope will show its rings and the Jupiter is not yet above the horizon at the time for which the map is given but by the end of June it will rise in the southeast in Sagittarius soon after sunset.

Mars and Venus are both in the northwestern sky in the early evening but Venus will be too close to the sun to be seen until the end of June when it may be seen in the twilight not far from the horizon.

Mars is farther east of the sun than Venus but it will be lost to view before the month is over as it is now no brighter than a second magnitude from the earth. Venus will be seen because of its exceptional brilliancy though closer to the sun than Mars.

But how is America to accomplish this great aim? How is America to make the World's greatest curse—WAR—if not impossible, at least quite improbable? Not by saying—it cannot be done? Not by saying—Wars have always been and always will be. Not by saying—To war, to fight, is but human nature. You will not do it by glorifying war. It can only be done by outlawing war in the consciences of men; by creating a world opinion against war, and in the words again of President Coolidge by finding institutions by which international relations will be placed upon the sure foundations of the rule of law, instead of the rule of force, by organizing the nations and peoples in the aspirations and the ways of peace.

"America has blazed politically for the world, the paths of justice, equality and opportunity and has thus greatly advanced the cause of humanity."

"Our task is but begun. In the words again of President Coolidge—Our nation has a mighty responsibility, not only for maintaining its own welfare, liberties, and power, but for the utmost possible contribution toward organizing the nations and peoples in the aspirations and the ways of peace. This is to be done not by force or arms; but by force of reason. Not by coercion, but by persuasion. By setting up world institutions based upon world opinion and that will give to the world a government of law as we are enjoying it, instead of a government of force, that has so often in the world's history submerged humanity in tears, bitterness and blood."

To no greater task has America ever dedicated herself. She has made secure for her citizens in this land by Constitutional Provisions life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. She has removed the last vestige of bondage by striking from the black man's limbs the shackles of slavery. She has placed womanhood politically upon an equal plane with man. Are we to rest now content with our own lot; satisfied of our own security or are we as a nation ready to recognize that we are our brother's keeper? And are we willing to make due effort that there may come to others the blessings of liberty?"

SINKS UNDER BRIDGE

Berlin—To pass under low bridges on the River Spree, excursion steamers have been equipped with large water tanks, which when filled will lower the vessel just enough so that it can pass under the bridge.

HIGHWAY 55 NOW IN GOOD SHAPE FOR TRAVEL

Motorists returning from the north by way of Highways 55, 47 and 16 report that Highway 55 now is in excellent condition for travel. This road, formerly known as the Old Military road, was made a state highway a few years ago, and much work has been accomplished in widening and grading it. One section of 20 miles, however, running through the Indian reservation, is likely to soften during prolonged wet weather. A month ago travel was practically impossible on Highway 55, according to motorists. Work still is in progress on the road, but traffic is permissible.
